What’s with the Power 10? The “power ten” is a command a rowing coxswain can call to push their boat to victory. When they medal, it’s tradition the rowers throw the cox in the water. We’re working to create a reliable network of farmers raising rotationally grazed animals for the DC area. This will help ensure our coxswains will be dunked into a safe and swimmable Potomac River. The story is told on our late November email, found online. Please sign up for our email list to stay current with our specials and events!
